Should He Have Opinions?

Should He Have Opinious?

Phila, Press.

Mr. Cleveland, in his letter of scooptance, propounded the theory that a Presidential candidate should have no opinion. He should simply stand on the platform of his party, Mr. Cleveland went further, and indicated even that an actual President should have no policy. He should be merely an "executive." This Cleveland theory is suited to a man who is a cipher, and it shields his own emptiness; but it does not meet the views or satisfy the demands of the commity.

Tie people have a right to know the position and it e purposes of the man who aspires to tenome their chief ruler. When Mr. Cleveland tells us that he has no opinion apart from his party, we answer that on the foremost lesse of the day—the tariff question—his party has two opinions, and we have the right to know which of the two is his. He cannot hold both. The platform faces both ways. Watterson, Carlisic and Morrison declare that it means free trade. A few Democrats undertake to interpret it for protection. This question-take to interpret it for protection. This question to ever had over head to dege that with these coulities (wes, it is both cowardly and unjustifiable in Mr. Cleveland to dedge it.

country; and does not every camild man recognize that, with these conflicting views, it is both cowardly and unjustifiable in Mr. Cleveland to dedged.

Not does his view of the Presidential office conform to the requirements of the Constitution. The President is an executive officer, but he is more. The Constitution expressly provides that 'he shall, from time to time, give to the Congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient. 'How is a Frestient to recommend if he has no views of his own? He is called upon not only to recommend measures
to Congress, but to sign or veto measures
to Congress, but to sign or veto measures which come from Congress is him. In this capacity be is a part of the law-maining power, Hasn't the country the right to know how he would treat a tariff bill? How is this just demand met by answering that he is only an "executive." He executes the laws after they are put on the statute-book?

It is true that Anny Johnson was condemned throughout the country for stubbornly persiating in 'my policy.' The people hold that he went beyond the rightful bounds of the Executive. But that was because he treulent ystempresd to enforce his policy in open definance of the declared will of the people and their representatives. The question of usurping the question of having opinions upon which to I ase recommendations or to pass upon bills is another. Cleveland's plea is as mistaken as his evasion is cowardly.

A SUPPOSED HUMAN BEING, With Instincts Lower Than Such as Are Possessed by the Lowest of God's Creatures.

A case of the most shocking cruelty was brought to the attention of the police this morning, in which a brutal negro named Esau Pinkney, of No. 2 Cox's alley, be-tween Sixth and Seventh and D and E streets, inflicted brutal punishment on his 6-year-old son, George Pinkney, an un-usually bright little colored child.

Mr. Samuel Lloyd, who lives next door Mr. Samuel Lloyd, who lives next door to the unnatural parent, complained at Police Headquarters of the outrage, and Detective Block went to the house of Pinkney, which is only one and a-haif blocks from Headquarters, and took the father and child into custody. The father stoutly denied that he caused the child's injuries.

The child was stripped in the presence of a Carrie reporter, and his little form presence a sight that turned sick even the stout officers who are accustanced to wit-and otherwise lacerated his body yesterday.

The child's face was smeared with blood, and the most horrible cuts and bruises were found on his face, head, body and limbs.
The car was found to be badly lacerated, and fresh cuts, nearly two inches long, were found all over the child's body, and the back and limbs of the little one were liter-ally covered with sears, the result of pre-

The child, in spite of the intimidation of his father, told the officer that the cuts and wounds on him were caused by his father.

Detective Block took the brute before Prosecuting Attorney Thomas of the Police Court, and charged him with assault, and the case was set down for trial to-morrow. The police authorities say that we should have a society for the provention of cruelty to children, as there are often cases found to children, as there are often cases found where it would be a charity to have a place to put children who have brutal and drunken parents who beat and neglect them. He Will Hold Them Responsible. E. Manuel Hecht, 917 O street, com-plained some time ago to the Commission-ers, of a nnisance existing on his premises, and he writes another letter in answer to the Commissioners reply, stating that if a death occurs in his family, arising from the defective sewerage, he will hold the Com-missioners and Health Officer responsible.

Ten Dollars for Assaulting His Wife's Sisters.

William Davis, whose relations with his wife's family are not of the most amiable character, were before the Polloe Court today for assaulting his two sisters-in-law, Lizzie Engel and Jessie Farrell. They charged that he came to their house, where his wife is staying, and assaulted them both. He was fined $10 in each case.

A warrant was sworn out at the Police Court to-day against Wm. Bartholmae, a saloon keeper on Seventh street, between R and S, charging him with assaulting some colored men, who complain that they went into his place and called for drinks and were not furnished with the kind of drinks they called for, and whon they refused to pay for the drinks he threw some cold water in their faces. water in their faces.

Does Not Think It a Safe "Family Newspaper."

Indianapolis Journal.

If the remarkable code of morality recently promulgated by the New York Evening Post does not har that sheet from the list of "family newspapers," the communications to which it opens its columns will surely do so, Our cerrespondent declares his belief that sympathy for Cleveland, evoked by the publication of the scandal concerning him, will gain him a million votes, which he otherwise would not have had. "There are," says this indecently sentimental correspondent, "some sins, like some corrows, that are sacred." If this style of literature is to obtain in the Post, as now seems likely, it will behove Anthony Comstock to look after it, if careless fathers of families neglect their duty.
